SPRING SPRUCE UP Council sets sights on vacant buildings

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

As a merchant and now mayor, Rick Skinner has kept his eyes on downtown Williamstown for a long time.

One of the items on his “to do list” was to address the deteriorated, vacant buildings in the city limits and now he’s asking the city council to adopt some rules for how to get the job done.

Four ordinances were on the council’s April 1 agenda, but were tabled after discussion on whether the ordinances were too stringent. Council members agreed to discuss them again at a special council meeting on April 16.

The four ordinances addressed:

- Adopting the International Building Code, which has building codes that include setting minimum and maximum temperature levels inside businesses.
- Set penalties for refusing to clean up “nuisance” properties.

- Allowing the city to tax from 75 cents on each $100 of a property’s assessed value if the property becomes an “abandoned urban property.”

- Establishing procedures and requirements for issuing administrative search warrants.

“These ordinances really give some teeth to get some things done here. It goes along with what other older cities have done to deal with abandoned properties,” City Attorney Jeff Shipp, told the council.

State law says most outdoor burning is illegal

FRANKFORT – It’s spring and some Kentucky residents may want to burn unwanted debris as part of spring clean-up. But under state law, most outdoor burning is now illegal in Kentucky. And illegal outdoor burning could bring fines as large as $25,000 per day per violation “Today’s trash is different than the trash our grandparents used to burn,” Division of Air Quality Director John Lyons said in a news release. “Plastics, chemicals, and other synthetic materials are far more common in the things we throw away. Burning this trash releases high levels of toxic pollutants such as dioxins, sulfur dioxide, lead and mercury.”

State law prohibits the burning of many materials including plastic, tires, cans, coated wire, carpeting and food waste. In addition, the burning of trailers, buildings, and construction and demolition debris such as shingles, drywall and insulation is prohibited. Painted, stained or treated wood products like fence posts, pallets, and furniture are illegal to burn, because they release dangerous toxins into the air. Items that cannot be recycled should be taken to a state-permitted landfill, the news release said.

DRFD paramedic Joe Jamison demonstrates how the drug Narcan is given to someone suspected of an opiate overdose.

Since 2008, the use of Narcan, a drug which swiftly blocks receptors in opiates found in heroin, has nearly tripled for the Dry Ridge Fire Department.

WHAT IS HEROIN?

Heroin is a highly addictive drug derived from morphine, which is obtained from the opium poppy. It is a “downer” or depressant that affects the brain’s pleasure systems and interferes with the brain’s ability to perceive pain.

“We see more heroin than we see any kind of other overdose.”

- Joe Jamison
Asst. DRFD fire chief

By Bryan Marshall, Staff Writer

The skyrocketing rise of heroin abuse in Grant and other Northern Kentucky counties may be grabbing headlines.

However, those in the front lines have seen the growing problem face-to-face for a long time.

“Northern Kentucky as a whole has had a heroin problem for almost 10 years now,” said Dry Ridge Fire Department Assistant Chief Joe Jamison. “It’s just now starting to be seen by the majority of the people. That’s the scary part.”

Jamison, who heads DRFD’s EMS, believes, until recently, heroin has not received the same publicity as methamphetamine and prescription pills.

“From an EMS point-of-view, we see more heroin than we see any kind of other overdose,” he said.

Demon Dash to raise funds for WES classrooms

Williamstown Elementary will be hitting the ground running in an effort to raise money for technology.

The Williamstown Elementary Booster Organization (WEBO) is sponsoring the inaugural Demon Dash from 5 to 6 p.m. Friday, April 19 in front of the school.

The fundraiser will feature students, teachers and parents walking or running around the front driveway and parking lot of the school.

Prior to the event, participants will obtain sponsors, including family, friends, neighbors and community businesses, based on the number of laps participants think they can complete in 30 minutes.

The track will be marked and the street in front of the school will be blocked off by the Williamstown Police Department.

Laps will be monitored by teachers, staff and community volunteers.

Proceeds from the Demon Dash will go toward the purchase of additional laptops and laptops for WES classrooms.

For more information about sponsorship, contact Christine Thibault at christine.thibault@williamstown.kyschools.us.

Colorful flamingoes can be sent to friends, family or businesses to help pay to send youth from Williamstown Baptist Church on a Haiti mission trip this summer.

Creative fundraising helps pay for mission trips, Grant relay

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

The feathers are a flying in Grant County these days.

A flock of wild birds, ranging in colors from hot pink to deep purple, have been popping up in yards all over the county. The birds stay a day or two and then for a small fee will move on.

The “You’ve Been Flocked” campaign is a fundraising effort by Williamstown Baptist Church to raise $32,000 to send five adults and 15 youth group members to a mission camp in Haiti this summer.

“This is our first time to take an international trip and we’re excited,” said Deanna Cummins, youth leader at WBC.

For a $20 donation, 15 flamingoes can be sent to someone’s lawn or business. For $50, a large flock of 50 birds will be delivered. The recipient can then “pay” to have the birds removed and sent to someone else.

So far, the church youth have raised $4,500 by “flocking.”

“So far it’s going well and it’s not just people in the church who are getting into it,” Cummins said.

The mission trip costs $1,600 per person. The youth and adults will travel to Haiti June 7 and spend a week at Crossings Haiti helping conduct vacation bible school as well as doing manual labor at the camp.

The funds raised will also allow 20 Haitian children to attend the camp at no cost to them or their families.

Donations can be sent to Williamstown Baptist Church, Haiti Mission Trip, 214 N. Main, Williamstown, Ky. 41092. To find out more about the flocked program, call Darryl or Deanna Cummins at 859-466-8857.

The “flocked” fundraising idea has been utilized by other organizations to raise funds for a variety of programs. A couple of years ago, a Grant County Relay For Life team had a traveling outhouse that would appear in yards.

This year, the Dry Ridge Fire Department RFL team will be happy to “top” your friends and family. For a donation, a dozen bright, red fire helmets will be delivered to a home or business.

Money from the “You’ve Been Topped” fundraising effort will benefit the Grant County Relay For Life. For more information about being topped call Vickie at 859-824-4282.

• What is an editorial?

An editorial is the newspaper’s view on a particular issue. In developing editorials, employees of the newspaper consider what, in their collective view, is best for the community. Editorials are meant to suggest a course of action and to foster discussion on issues important to the community. They can also recognize or praise individuals and groups for community service and good works.

How can I submit a letter to the editor?

Letters to the editor can be handwritten, typed or in e-mail form. Letters should be 300 words or less.

Letters to the editor must contain the writer’s name, address and phone number. Just one letter per month is allowed per writer, unless it is a response to a previous letter.

Send letters to: gcneditorial@grantky.com or to P.O. Box 247, Williamstown, Ky. 41097 or drop off at 129 S. Main, Suite B in Dry Ridge.

Letters with libelous content will not be published. Letters are edited for grammar, clarity and length if they are over 300 words.

WORTH REPEATING:

I never had a policy; I have just tried to do my very best each and every day.

- Abraham Lincoln

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

Southern values

For most of my life, my mom was a single mother to three children. I remember the late nights she used to work and how my sister would have to help me with my homework and we would all have to help with the chores around the house. I saw how she struggled and fought to put food on the table.

For all the struggles, I never remember needing for anything, sure there was plenty I wanted but not needing anything.

There are almost exactly five years between myself and my siblings. Sibling rivalry does not come close to describe what we had. We were just old enough for each of us to bicker and fight, but we loved one another.

She did the best she could with what she had.

She raised all of us to be hard-working, independent individuals and never to expect anything to be given to us.

We were raised in the south. My mother used to put the fear of God in me when she caught me doing wrong.

I remember many a time I said

Personally Speaking

is the opinion of the writer and does not necessarily reflect the editorial opinion of the newspaper.

Camille
MCCLANAHAN

Editorial Assistant

“I hope mom doesn’t find out,” or “Mom is gonna kill me.” It was a healthy fear for she gave me “whoopings” like no other or so I thought as a child.

My family is huge and was close when I was younger and the term “It takes a village to raise a child” held true. For my entire family treated me like their own, for better or worse.

I was told to pick out my own switch, you’d better come back with a switch not a twig or you got it twice as bad.

My childhood wasn’t pretty at times but most of it was like any other.

I knew the difference between right and wrong. I knew that you treated others as you would want to be treated.

I look around now at how people raise their kids and how those kids grow up to be ungrateful, selfish and thinks the world owes them something.

It never fails to amaze and disgust me when you can flip the news on any given channel and see murderers and drug dealers. I’m sure if you talk to them, it would always be someone else’s fault.

I was raised to take accountability for my actions even though at times it wasn’t easy.

We all do things we aren’t proud of.

I am a firm believer in what doesn’t kill you makes you a stronger person. I have lived by those words and they have carried me through time and again.

I still try to live by the values that were instilled in me as a child, sometimes the hard way.

Some people might even say that I’m stubborn and as bull-headed as they come.

I attribute my upbringing to my strong desire to succeed and do things the right way the first time.

My mother made mistakes but what parent doesn’t, especially a single parent. It may have been my southern raising or just times were different 20 years ago, either way I’m glad I am who I am and have the sense to treat people with respect.

CAPITAL COMMENTS

Public pension reform is session highlight

After finishing my first legislative session as majority floor leader, I am proud to look back at the significant accomplishments of the 2013 regular session of the general assembly. Most importantly, we successfully established a new spirit of bipartisan collaboration which allowed us to move the state forward in a meaningful fashion on substantive issues such as comprehensive public employee pension system reform, university bonding, a regulatory framework for hemp production, and added transparency for special taxing districts.

Without doubt, the single greatest achievement of this session was reform of the financially troubled public employee pension system. Since the Senate had introduced legislation to preserve and protect state and local employees’ retirement over the last eight sessions, it was with a renewed sense of urgency that a resolution be achieved on this looming crisis. I commend Governor Beshear for his leadership as he worked diligently with both chambers to find compromise on Senate Bill 2 and House Bill 440, measures that reflect the recommendations of the bipartisan task force that met this past year and that establish a funding mechanism to fully pay the actuarially required contribution. The bipartisan funding solution does not rely on any new taxes or any lottery revenue. These two bills will ensure Kentucky’s public employees’ retirement is protected, while saving taxpayers an estimated $10 billion over the next 20 years.

Senate Bill 2 will not affect current and retired employees, nor will it affect teachers’ retirement. It will create a hybrid cash balance plan for all new state employees, local government employees, legislators and judges who enter the system after January 1, 2014. It is not a 401K plan. The plan will be managed by the Kentucky Retirement System (KRS) as it is today, with a four percent contribution by the state and a five percent contribution by the employee. The employee is guaranteed a four percent minimum return on investment. The employee will be fully vested with contributions and returns after five years, so the benefits accrued can be taken if they switch jobs. In addition, it will require pre-funding of any future cost-of-living adjustments for retirees. Without this reform, the pension system was projected to be bankrupt in four years. Now, the extra dollars needed to pay for pension benefits are available for other worthy purposes like education and healthcare.

Senate Bill 50 would establish a framework for industrial hemp farming if the federal government legalizes its growth. Senator Rand Paul, Congressman Thomas Massie and Congressman John Yarmuth agreed to seek a waiver of the federal ban on hemp production as soon as the regulatory framework is established. Since Kentucky’s climate is ideal for hemp, the crop is an alternative for tobacco farmers, with the economic benefit of jobs from the production of goods made from hemp, including cars, clothes and cosmetics.

The general assembly adopted House Bill 7, an important bill authorizing six of the state’s eight public universities to bond $363 million for 11 building projects. These include renovation and expansion of Albright Health Center at Northern Kentucky University, a new science building at the University of Kentucky, and an Honors College and International Center at Western Kentucky University, among others. The measure requires the bond indebtedness be paid by the universities, not state tax dollars, and precludes the use of tuition increases as a means of paying the debt. This legislation will help the universities with much needed classroom and housing improvements while creating more than 5,000 construction jobs.

Special taxing districts became the focus of the 2013 Session as the Senate and House worked together to pass legislation that would provide for more accountability and transparency to the

THAYER

State
Senator

general public. More than 1,200 such districts spend in excess of $2.1 billion of public money each year. House Bill 1 requires these districts to publish their financial statements online and conduct regular audits. In addition, the special taxing districts would be required to submit a budget report to their local fiscal court and hold a public hearing before imposing a new fee or increasing the rate of an existing tax. The measure enhances the degree of accountability that should always accompany the power to tax.

In addition to these major issues, the general assembly also passed initiatives to strengthen Kentucky’s educational opportunities for high achieving, as well as at-risk students; to help the state’s most vulnerable citizens, its children, from human traffickers; to enhance Kentuckians’ Constitutional rights to bear arms; and to protect religious freedom, among other issues. Overall, the general assembly passed legislation that will protect and improve the quality of life of every Kentuckian.

Unless called to a special session by the Governor, the general assembly will convene for the 60-day session in January 2014 to begin work on a new budget. Between now and then, the interim joint committees will meet to hear new issues and review past ones. In addition, I will be meeting with constituents and look forward to hearing your thoughts and concerns. Please call me toll-free at 1-800-372-7181. You can also review the Legislature’s work online at www.lrc.ky.gov.

DOWN AND DIRTY

Match mulching material with plant's needs

Mulch has become a landscape staple, almost to a fault when it is over applied, smothering roots and girdling trunks. When done properly it can help to suppress weeds, retain moisture and moderate temperature. These things can be achieved using a variety of materials but which type of mulch suits your needs best?

Predominately we use organic materials for mulching. Organic mulches include plant or animal derived materials like wood chips, pine needles, tree bark, grass clippings, composted manure, and worm castings. Organic materials have the benefit of looking natural while adding varying amounts of nutrients to the soil. I personally prefer a mulching material that is nutrient rich so it improves the soil and provides food for the plant while serving its other practical applications.

Inorganic mulching materials include stones, gravel, landscape fabrics, plastics and even recycled tires. While these may last longer they do not always provide the look that a homeowner wants for their landscape. Because they take less maintenance, they are more often seen in high traffic or municipal areas than around our homes.

Different mulches , different results

Most things serve a purpose if used properly, but there are some concerns with certain inorganic mulching materials and their ability to allow a seasonal warm up and cool down of a plant's root system.

When we mulch to moderate soil temperature we are usually mindful of keeping the roots cool in the summer. In the winter months, however, I think there is a mixed message about what mulch will achieve. Organic mulches used properly, two to two and a half inches deep, typically allow for the proper warming and cooling of the soil as winter turns to spring and fall turns to winter. Inorganic mulches, however, may cause some delay in the process resulting in winter damage.

In the article, "Using Mulches in Managed Landscapes" (a cooperative effort by Iowa State University, Ohio State University and University of Kentucky) the authors state "Mulch effects on root zone temperature, as well as any potential benefits or consequences for plants, will vary considerably depending on factors such as properties of mulch, soil type, soil moisture, plant species or cultivar, and weather patterns."

I mention all this because we need to understand that mulch can create an environment that may make it difficult for the plant to acclimate accordingly from season to season. Too much mulch before the ground freezes is like having a bikini on underneath your full-length fur. Take the coat off and you're in for a shock once winter hits. A plant's root system needs to cool down and slowdown in order to sufficiently go dormant before you mulch the area to prevent heaving and thawing. Always wait for several hard freezes before you apply mulch for moderating winter soil temperatures.

The same thing can happen in the summer if certain types of materials are used as mulch. Wait until the soil has a chance to warm up a bit before you apply mulch otherwise you may insulate the cool soil and delay the warm up, thus delaying plant growth.

Inorganic Mulches

The use of various inorganic mulches can really fool plants, too. Using black plastic, for instance, is like keeping the fur coat on all summer, not to mention that it doesn't allow for healthy amounts of oxygen to reach the root system. This can cause double trouble once winter rolls around again, too. The plant will be slow to go dormant because the root system is still warm and therefore it will be more susceptible to winter damage.

Even using crushed brick, rock or pea gravel may speed up the warming process in the spring. The University Extension article on mulches cited an example where a red maple broke dormancy early in the spring (around here that means it would likely suffer from late frost damage) likely due to the brick and pea gravel's capacity to conduct heat to the underlying soil. Gradual warming and cooling of the soil is best and mulch should be used to moderate the soil temperature seasonally.

None of this is to say that you should not use certain materials as mulch, however match them up accordingly with what you want to achieve and what the cultural realities are for your plants. Use black plastic around your tomato plants, these annuals love warm soil and they only live a short time. I would avoid using it with anything that lives longer than a couple of months, though.

GRACE NOTES

Death has lost its sting

About six or so years ago, I met a man who said he saw a dead man raised to life. The dead man's name was Bob and the man who told me about it said God had told him to go to Bob's house and pray. He didn't know Bob had died until he got there, but since God had told him to pray, he figured he better do it. So, he asked Bob's wife if he could see him. The man had seen death before and Bob was dead. Even so, the man started praying because God had told him so. All of a sudden, Bob took a breath or as the man described it "He sucked all the air out of the room." After that, Bob wasn't dead anymore. I don't remember what happened next except the man told Bob he smelled bad and needed to shave. Then the man shaved his face all nice and tidy, slapped on some Brut aftershave and told Bob's wife to cancel the funeral arrangements. To this day I don't know if it really happened. The man who told me is a Pentecostal preacher and stuff like miracle healings and resurrections tend to happen when they're involved. They tend to believe that a dead man can get up and walk. I'm not Pentecostal but I do believe one instance where that happened before. On Sunday, the world will celebrate. Let me say right here-I love Easter-I love it more than Christmas. There's nothing about the holiday that makes me sad or nostalgic, no unmet expectations, no guilt over traditions that I've neglected to pass on to my children. Just Cadbury Creme Egg, jelly beans and the celebration of a once dead man who got up and walked out of a sealed tomb and changed the world forever.

Here's something that I think about often, the Bible says that the same power that raised Jesus from death is the same power that is "at work for us to believe." (Ephesians 1:19)

Feel powerless? The same power that gave life to a dead man-three days worth of dead-is the same power that God uses on our behalf, in us, through us, for us, because of us.

That power is what enables a person to have faith to begin with, to believe the most outlandish story that God stepped away from his throne in heaven to become a man by being born of a virgin, lived a perfect life, then took all the sins of humanities upon himself-past, present and future-died a brutal death in their place, came back to life three days later, then 40 days after that returned to heaven where he had always lived. It takes incredible power to believe such a story. That's resurrection power. It's resurrection power that changes a human heart, enables liar to stop lying, haters to stop hating. Resurrection power breaks the power of sin, takes away the craving for revenge, the lust for attention and approval and the need for control. Resurrection power has kept me from destroying people with my tongue. Many times I've wanted to annihilate someone and I open my mouth to curse and out pops kindness instead. That's power that isn't natural. It's supernatural and it's a gift. Resurrection power turns sadness into celebration, makes the impossible possible. Hearts of stone turn soft and pliable. Insecure and fearful hearts find security and peace. Resurrection power turns God haters and God indifferent into God worshippers and truth lovers. It changes the self-centered to other-focused. Not all at once, but changed nonetheless. Resurrection power removes the dreadful fear of death. I used to be terrified of death (and almost as terrified of living.) But somehow, for some reasons God only knows, I was given the power and the grace to believe that a dead man came back to life. Because, I believe, death has lost its sting for me. God has promised that one day after I'm long dead and worm food, I too, will get up and walk into eternity. I know, it sounds utterly ridiculous, but not to those who experienced resurrection power.. For us, it's the gospel.

Williamstown participates in Digital Learning Day

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Williamstown teachers, staff and even a few students got technologically advanced as part of Digital Learning Day.

The national campaign that shines a spotlight on successful instructional practice and effective use of technology in classrooms took place Feb. 6.

To participate, Williamstown Independent Schools took part in a QR code scavenger hunt throughout the school using an Ipad to learn new digital teaching tools.

QR codes were placed in six common staff areas around the school for staff to scan the large codes and review the content, website or video they are taken to.

From a type-to-speech generator and a survey site to a flashcard application and a Khan Academy link, each QR code provided another potential teaching tool.

"With so many things out there to choose from, sometimes it can be a bit overwhelming for a classroom teacher," said Kathy Shoemaker, Williamstown Independent Schools library media and technology support. "Hopefully, we gave them a few examples to create a starting point. We hope each teacher picked up at least one new tool they can use."

A clue to the location of the next QR code was given by scanning a smaller code.

Participants were given a quiz at the end of the scavenger hunt and an Ipad was given to one elementary teacher and one junior/senior high teacher through a drawing.

Williamstown High School Spanish teacher Silvia Encinas brought along students during her scavenger hunt, using the opportunity to have the students translate the clues from English to Spanish.

Williamstown Elementary kindergarten teacher Julie Kinsey said she enjoyed the Digital Learning Day.

"The scavenger hunt was very beneficial because it taught me new ways to use the Ipads in the classroom," she said. "There is a wealth of ideas being used in schools across the country."

Although they are only in their first year of school, Kinsey said she has been using Ipads extensively with her students this year.

"I am so proud of the boys and girls," she said. "It's amazing how quickly the students pick up on things. They use the Ipads almost daily to practice reading and math skills as well as using the QR scanner to link them to stories on websites. In addition, they work with a partner or in small groups to research animals and other topics."

Shoemaker said the teachers responded well to the scavenger hunt and Digital Learning Day, even expressing an interest in creating their own lesson for their classrooms.

"Seeing so many of them taking their students along on the scavenger hunt was great," she said. "It was especially interesting to see how they incorporated it into their lesson for the day. One student said, 'This is the most awesome adventure ever!' Isn't that how we want kids to feel about school in general?"

GCMS students learn science is entertaining, useful

The Grant County Middle School the annual science fair and STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) night recently. The goal was to incorporate science, technology, engineering and math and to inform the students of careers that have some of those elements in them and to engage the students in activities in each area.

The Dry Ridge Fire Department demonstrated to the students how a thermal imaging camera works and Northern Kentucky University showed the students a ground penetrating radar. Grant County Drugs and Grant County's Waste Management showed emulsions and a yeast powered windmill

Braves dominate Bracken 17 - 2

Braves win five; face SK on April 10

The Grant County High School Braves Baseball team, coached by Darrin Robinson, have won five games this season.

On April 3, they squared off with Bracken County and coasted to a 17-2 victory.

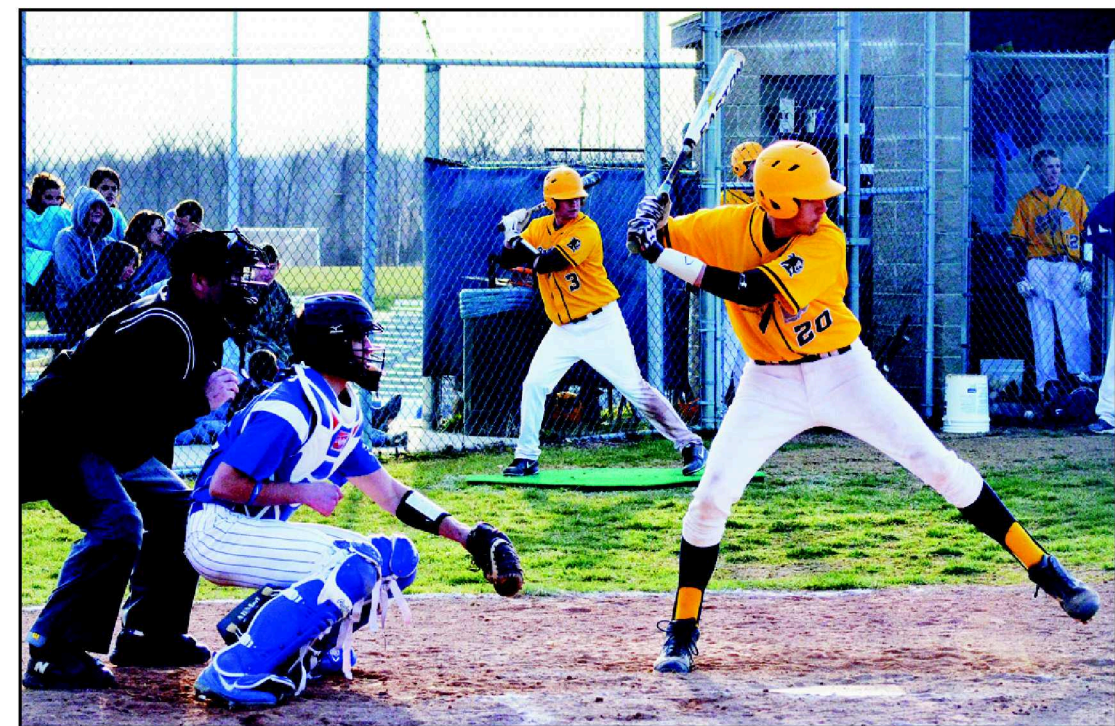

Danny Gillum took the mound for the Braves.

The Braves were able to control the game from the start, causing Bracken County to switch pitchers in the first inning.

The Braves were able to connect with the ball and scored 17 runs to Bracken County's two runs.

The Braves played Dixie Heights on April 9, followed by Simon Kenton at 5 p.m. on April 10.

Lady Braves fall to Lady Panthers

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

Mackenzie Ogden's two-run homer over the centerfield fence helped lift Carroll County to a 4-0 victory over Grant County April 8.

The Lady Braves traveled to Carrollton to face the Lady Panthers.

Both teams struggled at the plate against two different types of pitchers. Carroll's Sarah Hawkins excels at keeping the ball on the ground, allowing her infield to take care of business. She struck out four batters, while allowing just two hits and one walk.

Despite some struggles against Carroll County, Grant coach Jeremy Murrell likes what he sees from his players.

"I am pleased with the team's performance overall at this point. We are constantly improving and I hope to do so each every practice and game," Murrell said.

Grant's Kayla Cummins pitched at a slower speed than the Lady Panthers have been used to, and the home team took a while to adjust. Cummins struck out eight batters and allowed six hits and two walks.

"Pitching was pretty much the name of the game," Lady Panthers Coach Hawkins said.

The Lady Panthers eventually found their rhythm. Ogden led the team at the plate, going 2-4 with two RBIs.

With just two wins on the season, Murrell said the Lady Braves will continue to work on team defense and hitting.

"The weather has seriously limited our outside practice time and also caused us to cancel two district games already. Hopefully, the weather will cooperate for the remainder of the season," Murrell said.

The Lady Braves' wins were against Shelby Valley and Jenkins.

Murrell said despite having six seniors, the remainder of the team is relatively young with one junior, two sophomores, five freshmen, seven eighth graders and four seventh graders making up the rest of the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen teams.

"I am pleased with the way the younger girls have played and contributed to the team," he said.

The Lady Braves traveled to Clarksville, Tenn. over spring break to participate in The Play It Again Sports Softball Tournament. The Lady Braves played against Livingston Central High School from Smithland, Ky. and Farragut High School, Beech High School and Lipscomb Academy, all in Tennessee, which are favorites in their regions. Prior to the trip, the Lady Braves squared off against Eastern High School in Louisville, Lexington Catholic and Harrison County.

"We've played a lot of tough teams and have been competitive with them. There are many tough teams left on the remainder of the schedule. My hope is that this will make our team that much better come tournament time," Murrell said.

They faced their cross-county rival, the Williamstown Lady Demons, on April 10, the same day that Sierra Sydnor, a senior pitcher/catcher, underwent shoulder surgery.

"We are hoping for a successful surgery and rehabilitation," Murrell said. Murrell said he feels for Sydnor because she will be missing most of her senior year with the team.

"Hopefully, she'll be able to bat again by the district or regional tournament," Murrell said.

Sydnor signed recently to play softball at Union College.

BASKETBALL CAMP SCHEDULED

The fourth annual All-Stars Basketball Camp will be held from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. for grades kindergarten through fifth grade and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. for grades sixth through eighth on June 4 through June 6 at the Grant County High School gymnasium. This is for boys only.

For more information, contact Jim Hicks, head boys basketball coach at the Grant County High School, at 824-9739.

CRAIG RUBER MEMORIAL CO-ED SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT PLANNED

A co-ed softball tournament named in honor of the late Craig Ruber will be held April 13 at Mullins Field in Williamstown. The money will go into the Craig Ruber Scholarship Fund, which would be awarded to a Grant County High School student.

Other events are also planned including an alumni basketball game. Ruth Epperson, Ruber's mother-in-law, is organizing the events.

"I wanted to do something because I felt like he was too good of a person not to do something in his name," Epperson said.

Epperson said Ruber and her daughter, Christa, met when Ruber moved to Grant County in the sophomore year of high school.

Epperson said eight teams have signed up so far for the softball tourney, including some from other communities.

For more information, call Epperson at 859-903-9631.

"I have excellent returning athletes that can encourage and teach the newcomers the way of the sport."

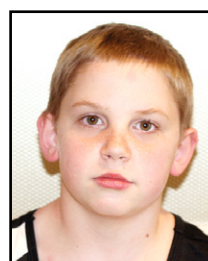

Coach Michelle Whaley

Walker Angell

Lacey Novak

Gabe Franks

Joel Ostertag

What do you expect from your players: I want my athletes to find what they are best at and set goals to work toward and reach by the end of the season.

Outlook for upcoming season: I am anxious to see how all my new athletes perform and get them to love the sport and keep coming back each season.

Who are your top returning athletes? What makes them top athletes?:I have two returning top athletes, Alex Prokopchak and Quade Simpson. They are both seniors and both went to state last season.

Who are the newcomers to the team that have a chance to make a difference: I have a big middle school team this season. I have had many seniors the past two years. I see great things with this group of boys.

What are some of the team's strengths: I have excellent returning athletes that can encourage and teach the newcomers the way of the sport. Also, the newcomers bring a new excitement and passion to the team.

What areas do you want to improve upon: Working on relay exchanges and more set events for athletes.

What are your goals for the season: Quade and Alex going to state their senior year and many more going to state. I want to instill the love of running in the newcomers so the future team will be performing at a high level.

Do you have a team motto or code that you follow and instill in your players: "The task ahead of you is never greater than the strength within you!"

NOTICE OF COMMISSIONER'S SALE

Mark T. Gifford, et al.

By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale entered in the Grant Circuit Court on March 21, 2013, I will sell at public auction on the front steps of the Grant County Courthouse, the property described herein located in Grant County, Kentucky, on WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 2013, at the hour of 11:00 a.m., prevailing time, and more particularly described as follows:

Said real estate is situated in Grant County, Kentucky, and bounded as follows:

The following described property located in Grant County, Kentucky, to-wit:

Three certain tracts or parcels of land lying and being in Grant County, Kentucky, and more particularly described as follows:

Lots 14, 15 and 16 in McGee Subdivision, Williamstown Lake, Tract #1, Ashcraft Farms, Humes Ridge Road, as shown by the plat or map thereof recorded in Plat Book 1, page 148 in the Grant County Clerk's Office.

Included is a 1997 Redman 28 X 56 mobile/manufactured home, Serial No. 137B7819, which has been affixed to the property and converted to real estate.

Being the same property conveyed to Mark T. Gifford, a single person who acquired title by virtue of a deed from Robbie R. Gifford, a single person, dated September 21, 2011, filed September 27, 2011, recorded in Deed Book 353, Page 222, County Clerk's Office, Grant County, Kentucky.

Property Address: 2825 Humes Ridge Road, Williamstown, Kentucky 41097

Parcel Number: 067-08-01-014.00

There is a mobile home, doublewide and/or manufactured home included in the sale.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale is the principal sum of $84,987.65, together with accrued interest thereon to October 1, 2011, and interest thereafter at the rate of 6.625% from October 1, 2011 (per diem interest in the amount of $15.44) until the entire amount has been paid in full; plus late fees, costs, attorney's fees, and other advances made pursuant to the terms of the Note.

The real estate shall be sold on the terms of 10% cash at the time of the sale, except that said deposit shall be waived if the Plaintiff is the successful bidder at the sale, and the balance on a credit of thirty (30) days bearing interest at the rate of 12% per annum for the date of sale. When the purchase price is paid in full, the deed will be delivered to the purchaser. It is further provided that the property sold includes insurable improvements and the successful bidder at said sale shall, at bidder's own expense, carry fire and extended insurance coverage on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid in the amount of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the amount of the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at minimum, with a loss payable clause to the Commissioner of the Grant Circuit Court and the Plaintiff herein. Failure of the purchasers to obtain such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the purchaser's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff to obtain said insurance and furnish the policy or premium thereon or the proper portion thereof shall be charged to the purchaser as purchaser's costs.

The aforesaid property shall be sold free and clear of all liens and encumbrances, except the following:

- All unpaid state, county and city real estate taxes for the year 2013;
- Easements, restrictions, and stipulations of record;
- Assessments for public improvements levied against the property;
- Any facts which an inspection and or accurate survey of the property may disclose.

For further information, see the Final Judgment and Order of Sale and pleadings of record in the Office of the Circuit Court of Grant County.

Official Notice
Owen Electric Cooperative, with its principal office at Owenton, Kentucky and with its address at 8205 Highway 127 North, Owenton, Kentucky 40359, has filed with the Kentucky Public Service Commission in Case No. 2012-00448 an application to adjust its retail rates and charges. The need for this adjustment is due to an increase in Owen Electric's expenses in the areas of wholesale power costs, interest, depreciation, and general operating expenses.				Customer charge	$ 20.00	$ 20.00
Owen Electric is also proposing a $0.001 per kWh increase to its Fuel Adjustment Clause to recover fuel costs it has paid to its wholesale power supplier but not collected through its fuel clause. This increase will last for approximately one year until all of these identified fuel costs are recovered.				Energy charge	$ 0.08015	$ 0.08501
The rates contained in this notice are the rates proposed by Owen Electric Cooperative but the Kentucky Public Service Commission may order rates to be charged that differ from these proposed rates contained in this notice.				Schedule 1-B1 - Farm & Home - Time of Day
Any corporation, association, or person may within thirty (30) days after the initial publication or mailing of notice of the proposed rate changes, submit a written request to intervene to the Public Service Commission, 211 Sower Boulevard, P.O. Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602 that establishes the grounds for the request including the status and interest of the party, and states that intervention may be granted beyond the thirty (30) day period for good cause shown.				Customer charge	$ 20.00	$ 20.00
Written comments regarding the proposed rates may be submitted to the Public Service Commission by mail or through the Public Service Commission's Web site at http://psc.ky.gov/ .				Energy charge
Any person may examine the rate application and any other documents the utility has filed with the Public Service Commission at the offices of Owen Electric Cooperative listed below and on the utility's Web site at www.owenelectric.com .				On-Peak	$ 0.11859	$ 0.12345
This filing and any other related documents can be found on the Public Service Commission's Web site at http://psc.ky.gov/ .				Off-Peak	$ 0.05789	$ 0.06275

Smoke from open burning is a health problem that affects everyone, but especially children, the elderly, and those with existing ailments like asthma. Children are particularly sensitive to air pollution from open burning, because their bodies are still developing. Children also breathe 50 percent more oxygen per pound of body weight than adults do, so their lungs are exposed to more harmful pollutants.

Open burning isn't just unhealthy, it's also dangerous. A small fire can quickly spread, especially during windy weather, resulting in widespread damage. From April 5 through April 7, for example, the Kentucky Division of Forestry reported 110 separate wildfires burning a total of 2,765 acres.

Some open burning is legal with restrictions. Campfires, fires for cooking, and fires to dispose of tree limbs are permitted in most counties, except when a countywide burn ban has been declared, or when prohibited by local ordinance. During fire hazard season, which runs through the end of April, it is illegal to burn anything within 150 feet of any woodland or brushland area between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. Restrictions may also apply during summer months for certain counties whose current pollution levels exceed air quality standards.

Use common sense before burning anything:

- Never burn within 50 feet of any structure.
- Never burn near streams or sinkholes
- Never burn near landfills or under utility lines.
- To report illegal open burning or to learn more about open burning restrictions in your area, please call the Division for Air Quality's open burn hotline at 1-888-BURN-LAW (1-888-287-6529) or visit <http://air.ky.gov>.

Councilman Eddie Gabbert questioned whether the ordinances addressed residential property only.

"These give teeth across the board to address residential and commercial property," Shipp said. "There are a couple of these ordinances that will get some people's attention."

Councilman Kim Crupper questioned whether other cities the size of Williamstown had adopted ordinances similar to the ones the council was considering.

"I think if you adopt the next four of these, you're sending a message it's going to be harder to do business in the city of Williamstown. I'd think the building codes the state has in place should be sufficient. These are pretty stringent," Crupper said.

Other council members expressed concern that if the city didn't start addressing the vacant, dilapidated buildings now, it would be an even bigger issue when the Ark Encounter Project is built.

"We've got such blight downtown. Since I've been in Williamstown 10 years, it's gotten worse," said Councilman Charles Ed Wilson. "I certainly don't want to come off as a Gestapo state and when something is done it will offend some, but we're going to have to do something."

Councilman Troy Gutman said he believed that some of the buildings should be torn down rather than repaired.

"My biggest concern is safety," Gutman said. "Can people walk up and down the street without a brick falling on them?"

Skinner said he was looking for council's guidance on how to address the issue.

"We discussed blight in 2008 when I was on council and five years later nothing has changed. It's gotten worse," Skinner said. "It's a tough issue and I'll enforce whatever you all legislate, but I just need a mechanism to do that."

"I applaud what you are trying to do to clean up our town, but I don't want to see another layer of rules because we want people to be able to do business in Williamstown," Crupper said.

DEAP
DIABETES EDUCATION ACCREDITATION PROGRAM
AADE American Association of Diabetes Educators

Diabetes is the 7th leading cause of death in the United States.

- Every 1% drop in A1C can reduce complications due to diabetes by 30 to 40%.
- Proper foot care can reduce amputation rates by 45% to 85%.
- Blood pressure control reduces the risk of cardiovascular disease (heart disease or stroke) among people with diabetes by 33% to 50%.

"With the help of my pharmacist and my physician, I was able to lower my A1C by 3% in just over 3 months. My pharmacist is a wonderful advocate for diabetes patients. She cares about her job and the patients she serves. I would recommend the diabetes education program to anyone wishing to improve their diabetes control."

Bill takes aim to help heroin addicts, families

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Family members soon could help stop an overdose of a loved one addicted to heroin and painkillers.

Gov. Steve Beshear is expected to sign House Bill 366 into law, which will allow physicians to prescribe a nasal version of Narcan to the public so they can administer the drug to opiate overdose patients.

Narcan blocks receptors in opiates in heroin and prescription pain pills and helps to reverse the effects of the drug.

The bill was passed in the recent 2013 General Assembly and was supported by both Sen. Damon Thayer, R, Georgetown, and Rep. Brian Linder, R-Dry Ridge.

"It will serve as a life-saving drug that can keep somebody alive," Thayer said. "There was broad support for it."

"And, the effects of heroin are so unpredictable that you don't know from one dose to the next what you're getting," Jamison said.

Jamison has been with the DRFD for about seven years and he also works for the Burlington Fire Department.

When he started in Grant County, calls dealing with heroin overdoses were not common, unlike in Boone County.

With the tightening of laws to make meth and get prescription pills, heroin has risen to the top of many addict's wish list, which has led to an increase in ambulance calls dealing with heroin overdoses in Grant County.

"It's got to be close to a 10-fold increase over the last five years, even more in the last two years," Jamison said.

The heroin problem now has likely reached the same level, per-capita in Grant County as in Boone County, excluding the large populated Florence, said Jamison.

Part of the problem is that this heroin epidemic sort of crept up on Kentucky really fast. I don't think there was a broad enough understanding of how bad the problem is and the steps we can take to fight it.

- Damon Thayer
State Senator, R-Georgetown

Dry Ridge Fire Department Assistant Chief Joe Jamison said the positive impact of third parties having the ability to administer Narcan are undeniable, but there also could be some drawbacks.

"I think family members being able to administer Narcan is going to be able to save lives," he said. "I think we'll see a decrease in the prolonged time that people are going without having intervention. But, I think family members need to understand that if they're giving the Narcan, they still need to get these patients in for intervention."

Jamison said it used to be that Narcan had to be thrown away because it was not used before the expiration date.

Now, it is tougher to get and supply could dwindle even more if the public has access to prescriptions of the life-saving drug.

As for further legislation to help curb heroin abuse, Linder said it is inevitable as the problem grows.

"I think we've got a drug problem," he said. "The previous legislature addressed it last year with House Bill 1. It has been very successful. The problem is that it has moved people from prescription pills to heroin. We've got to start addressing the heroin problem. Unfortunately, when we address the heroin problem, I think certain people will move to other drugs. I guess we're chasing our tails somewhat, but you've got to continue to do things to strengthen the laws and do what you can to help people overcome drug addiction."

Thayer said lawmakers passed House Bill 217 this session to help clean up some of the unintended consequences of the law passed last year regulating prescription pills and targeting alleged pill mills.

He also voted for Senate Bill 6, proposed by Sen. Kathy Stine, which he said would have given tougher penalties to heroin traffickers.

However, the bill did not pass the House.

Linder believes there also needs to be tougher penalties for repeat offenders or habitual users.

"People fall victim to this and if they can get out of this, that's one thing," he said. "But, when they continue to fall into the traps of drugs and are repeat offenders in drug-related crimes, I think we need to strengthen jail time."

While it is difficult for legislators to stay ahead of drug dealers, Thayer said the problem is only going to worsen if a solution is not found.

"Part of the problem is that this heroin epidemic sort of crept up on Kentucky really fast," he said. "I don't think there was a broad enough understanding of how bad the problem is and steps we can take to fight it. I'm hopeful that by next year's session there will be a greater understanding of the damage it's doing and some more ideas on how to fight it or more support for Senate Bill 6."

When paramedics arrive on scene, track marks on a heroin addict can be the first tip off of an overdose.

It is not uncommon for the powerful drug to be so strong that a syringe is still placed in an unresponsive patient's arm.

Jamison said he has worked overdoses from people ranging in age from teenagers to people in their late 50s and 60s.

"Most people when they shoot up, they shoot up with friends," he said. "But, the majority of heroin overdoses are found by themselves or by family members who don't know what happened. It's really hard to get a good understanding of what's going on when you know that these people have shot up with friends, but they're found alone."

When paramedics arrive on the scene of a potential heroin overdose, Jamison said they first run a couple quick tests, including checking blood sugar levels, as they hook the patient up to a heart monitor and start an IV.

"The problem with heroin is it's considered a depressant-style drug. It slows down your respiratory rate," Jamison said. "It makes you sluggish. It makes you slow to respond to things. It slows your heart rate down. Typically, we find them where they're not breathing or barely breathing. A lot of times, family members would have started CPR or other measures to try to get them to breathe on their own."

Once an IV has been established, EMS workers will then give the patient a dose of a life-saving drug naloxone, commonly known as Narcan.

Narcan is usually given through an IV to any patient who is unconscious or unresponsive, said Jamison.

Narcan blocks receptors in opiates in heroin and prescription pain pills and helps to reverse the effects of the drug.

Almost immediately after the Narcan is given, if a patient is under the effects of an opiate, they begin to come out of their stupor.

"Most of the time we're seeing a response within 30 seconds to a minute from the Narcan," Jamison said. "The typical response from giving Narcan is they slowly start to wake up and realize where they are. Most of the time they're confused about what is going on. The patients will become combative a lot of times and will try to fight and run because they're confused. After a few seconds, most of the patients calm down and realize what's happened and see family around and are subdued after the confusion goes away. It's like turning on a light switch when you give the Narcan."

Law enforcement tend to be on the scene of overdoses not only to handle any legal situation, but to also deal with any potential combative patient.

Since 2008, the use of Narcan has steadily increased by DRFD from 11 doses to 13 in 2009 and 25 in 2010.

DRFD used Narcan 35 times in 2012 for a total of 73 milligrams, an increase from 30 times and 44 milligrams in 2011.

So far in the first four months of 2013, six doses of Narcan have been used.

Paramedics usually administer the Narcan on scene instead of in the ambulance on the way to the hospital because of the need to take action quickly.

Five minutes after a person stops breathing, the brain starts to lose tissue and starts to become brain damaged.

Depending on what is in the heroin and how strong the drug is, brain damage could happen quicker.

"The problem is, in this community and a lot of other communities, the time that it takes for someone to call from the time that person goes unresponsive to the time the EMS gets there can be quite some time," Jamison said. "It causes a lot of irreversible damage that the Narcan and the paramedics aren't going to be able to reverse. Grant County isn't as bad as some of the other counties, but we're seeing a lot of heroin overdoses that are ending up with long-term brain damage."
